In this project it is intended to develop a web application to help teams of users manage projects and allow easy collaboration among team members. The management of the projects will be primarily made through task lists and discussion forums.

This project was chosen because our company members think that, now a days, it would be useful to have an application that allows users to plan, control and close the work of a team in order to achieve specific goals and meet specific success criteria.

The project's main features are its task lists and discussion forums for the team members. The team can use the task lists to keep track of progress of their work. When a task is created, the user who created it is recorded, the same happens once the task is completed. The tasks within these lists can be organized into groups. Team members are also allowed to comment and reply to comments on tasks. Each team has a forum to talk about proposals, issues or just general development of the project.

In any given project, users are separated into two groups with different permissions: team coordinators and ordinary team members. It is worth noting that an user can be associated with different teams and projects.

Team coordinators are allowed to add and remove team members. They can also edit and delete tasks created by other team members. Finally, they act as moderators in the team forum, i.e., edit, delete and sticky posts or comments.
